Escaping The Build Trap: How Effective Product Management

Last week, in the InVision Architecture Office Hours meeting, Shawn Hartsell recommended the book, Escaping the Build Trap: How Effective Product Management Creates Real Value by Melissa Perri. I'm not a Product Manager; but, the way Shawn talked about the book - touting "outcomes" over "output" - it tickled my curiosity.

Escaping the Build Trap: How Effective Product Management

Escaping the Build Trap achieves this superlatively. Written with clarity and plenty of illustrative examples borne out of long, hard-won experience, it explains both the 'How should we work?' and 'Why is that important?' in language that doesn't require a doctorate in Agile to understand.

Escaping the Build Trap: How Effective Product Management

Escaping the Build Trap is a great overview of what it means to be a product driven organization. Melissa does a nice job of traversing the organization stack and showing what it takes to have an effective product organization at each level - from the day to day of the individual product manager, to the role of the VP of Product, the rest of the executive team, and even how financing
